Wishing upon moony glint and millionstars
Sharing, deepest realms of his heart
Wisps of clouds above vying for
The delicate blooms
She had the prettiest smile

He in the whirl of her thoughts
She in the caverns of his fond dreams
He the universe, She his wonderland
In her he wishes to peek.
He had the prettiest heart

The passionate rhythm of his heart
Tangled up in her love
His brazen hunger
longing to envelop her in tender embrace
While her soul
Skips a beat for the pulse of his surge

His waves of wonder crave to get entwined in her heart and mind
His fingers twirling her hairs
She couldn't help but sink
Their love splattered now on the sheets

Her limbs moist from the rains of amour
Quieting thoughts.
While the stars glimpse Scattered petals everywhere and beetle's tumbling joy,
A sigh of contentment!

This was something they loved revising
Silken ripples of quivering wanton needs
Trickling the passion profound
His unchartered depth eternally craving to fathom and get explored
His thirst quenched; her soul drenched
On the shining soft sheets
Curved bodies in sated embrace

And this they loved to repeat
This symphony is not to fade
