Students are wild
But their minds are mild
You can situate them in any mould
So students are called

They are exceptionally curious
But sometimes they turn furious
You can organize them easily
If your psyche is knitted neatly

Their brains are like blank paper
You can carve on them any letter
Whether you engrave erroneous or better
So you should imagine schooling earlier than or later

They are incredibly precious creature
Because they are our country's future
We should bestow them apposite nurture
So that they could never lie on stretcher
