

D S Prathiba

Assistant Professor of English
Dr. Ambedkar Institute of Technology
Bangalore 560056

MAY, DID YOU DEPART OR?

Mammy as I called you 'May'
May, may, may! I used to drone.
When I was off and on,
Today, to whom should I call MAY...?
May, you use to gaze me when I veiled.
Today I look around and I find you nowhere but on the wall with the frame.
May, I miss those shouts behind my door and calls always charging my faults.
Today, I always ponder and there is nobody to yell at me on my faults.
May, I want those shouts to hear forevermore, which primed me for today.
Today, to whom should I ask for those counsel?

May, whenever I lose or want something, you made me firm to resist through that time.
Today, I have gained so much because of you, but I am worthless as I don't have you to praise.
May, hope I would have not gained so much in life, without you,
I could realize so much without you.

But you are invisible to show you my ups and downs, which you wanted in me to repel.
May, you left and passed, by saying that you will not comeback this time.
I can never forget whose last words, which always emits around me.
And that last day when I shouted at you, to come back HOME but you didn't.
Which always made me partial forever.

Lastly, I want to ask, did YOU departed me OR did GOD took you from me forever?

- DSP