

A DAY STARTS

Prathiba D S

Assistant Professor in English
Dr. Ambedkar Institute of Technology
Bangalore 560056
Email:dsp.prathiba@gmail.com
9972599864

It was a bright morning,
The sun was rising east,
The river was flowing west,
The flower was gushing south,
And the birds were flying north.

The red hot star was rising up,
The milk from milkie started boiling up,
The whirlpool in the whirlpool turning round & round,
The mustards on the flame made a spluttering sound,
And the minutes hand was running to hour's hand.

The shower was running to the floor to start a fresh day,
The raiment's were ready to confer its day,
And finally the keys were jingling to the creaking door to catch its day.
This is how a day starts?