My smile evaporates the moment I'm
Made to make up reasons for cheer
As though genuine feeling feeds on
The impulse of happiness, a consequence of human trade
Should you be thinking twice before giving your share of joy
To your heart where it legitimately belongs?
Heart neither takes away a lending hand
Nor smothers the speed of thought
Why rob it of its right to compassion!
All your living impulse asks for is to spare a few seconds
To merge thought and feeling
In remote intensity despite material proclivity!
