SUMMARY OF THE POEM (ABSTRACT): The poetry ‘The I-M-Possible Dream’ is a story of every common man who aspires to achieve something great but anything great doesn’t come without failures. This small concept is depicted in poetry as a story of small bird ready to face the world. His dream is to fly high in the sky but he falls back to the Earth on his first flight. He feels weak, down yet anchored to his dream he never loses hope and finally nature also supports him. He regains strength after facing all the hardships, and takes a new flight. This time he reaches up the sky. The poet finally reveals the dream of conquering many skies (achieving more heights) with firm attitude that even problems thinks twice before hampering the path of an achiever. Hence the title itself says- IMPOSSIBLE that is I-AM-POSSIBLE.

On an early morning flight, he came out bright
As the sun beamed his eyes gleamed
All he wanted was a stream to fly high.
A Dream that no one knew
He fought to make it new
Alas, he fell on Earth like dew.
Wilting, trembling like a sapling
He shredded, clinging, dreaming
Was this the ending?
With his cry, hues left the sky
The smiling clouds took a stand by.
Dark clouds nigh
The winds roared, the trees flowed
The rain was huge, everyone took refuge
When the rage pacified, a flush took a ride.
The sun shone, the flowers bloomed
The time was here to come out of gloom.
Tears dried, feathers were bright
With a pearl to the right, he sighed.
Strength restored, he took a stride
Went up high to the sky
Eyes Sparkled, all he knew was to fly.

Skies to conquer, world to explore
This is his dream to fly more and more,
That sun may forget his glitter ahead his 'Briller'.
