

THE DREAMFUL SLEEP

My orphan world
dissipated
in thousand manacles of
shine garlands,
when your
mere glance shared my lovelful tears.
Had I soaked
then....

My wild island
enriched with few bushes.
Unfamiliar your pink pure petals
laughed with Judgment Day.
And mine
buried corpses
settled to march
at sinless
castle of love.

Your drop
of hidden smile
showered on my dead dry desert.
Became I
the river of life
sacred stream
awaited dream.

Two banks
thy twin eyes
built my stream.
Farfetched heaven
burst in heart.
Every beat
celebrate our songs.
You and I
drenched as two buds
still flowering
to colour green world.

Let shut the veil
God almighty
waits our earthly roles.
The stage beyond cage.
Has made destiny
the fortunate play

For those unseen claps.... unbound every grip
love the dreamful sleep...
